FINE CUT

Watchful Policy Needed

In the mass of material that has already been submitted and is still being presented to the Rowell Commission on Dominion-provincial relations there is danger of some matters of considerable importance to the west being overlooked because of lack of emphasis, or at least side-tracked as comparatively insignificant when balanced against the more overwhelming issues of finance and divisions of legislative and administrative responsibility. One of these problems which is apt to get the "miss in bulk" because of the absence of the spectacular is that of assistance in the further development of the Hudson Bay route and for aid in promoting additional business for the direct and short highway between the Canadian west and European markets submitted at the Regina sitting of the Commission by the On-to-the-Bay association as a section of the Saskatchewan Government brief.

A Five-Year Plan

The Association asked that consideration be given to proposals that the Federal government absorb the differential in marine insurance rates as between the Bay route and the Lake and Rail route via Montreal, to place rates between Winnipeg and Great Britain on a competitive basis, for a period of five years.

The Association also requested the Federal government to establish a modern coal handling plant at Churchill equipped with screening facilities, weigh scales and other equipment to ensure prompt and economic discharge of incoming cargoes of Welsh anthracite coal and the installation of additional storage facilities, both at Churchill and intermediate points such as Hudson Bay Junction and The Pas to facilitate the storage and breaking of bulk of merchandise for the wholesale and retail trade in Manitoba and Saskatchewan cities.

Marine Insurance Rates

There is a good deal to be said in furtherance of these requests, much more than was contained in the brief and considerably more than space permits in this column.

In respect to the first request it should be pointed out, however, that if marine insurance rates continue to decline with the same speed that they have since the route was opened for business in 1931 by the end of a five-year period, provided sufficient volume of traffic can be secured, the rates will by that time be down to the same level as rates prevailing for inward and outward bound consignments through the St. Lawrence. Given improved crop conditions, the necessary volume of business to ensure this result should be handled through Churchill during the next five years if the requested Federal aid is forthcoming.

An Economic Proposition

Increased volume of traffic in both directions is also the objective of the requests for coal handling and storage facilities. The provision of such facilities would not only tend to make feasible inbound cargoes of Welsh coal and merchandise but would go a long way towards promoting the export of timber for pit props, for which there is a demand in British collieries, and junk, of which there is plenty on Western Canadian farms and for which there is also a market in Great Britain.

The provision of intermediate storage sheds would undoubtedly go a long way towards popularizing the Hudson Bay route with wholesalers and retailers in the centres of at least two of the prairie provinces as it would enable them to combine shipments, break bulk at interior points and secure consignments in less than carload quantities at local points, and the government is prepared to furnish such service at nominal cost for a period. It would also enable consignees to combine purchases and shipments on an economic basis.

Criticism Unwarranted

During the past few months smelting at the expense of the Hudson Bay route has been indulged in by some of the Eastern press, the inference being left that the system is somewhat of a white elephant, that it will be a long time, if ever, before it can stand on its own feet and that the East has had to bear the expense of its construction and is now called upon to finance its maintenance.

It is true that the railway is not yet paying its way, but the critics failed to point out that during the whole period it has been operating the west has been suffering from the combined shock of world economic depression with crop failures superimposed as an additional handicap, with the result that comparatively little export grain has been available for outbound cargoes via the H.B. route and the purchasing ability for incoming commodities has been severely curtailed.

As for the East bearing the cost of construction, this inference was badly shattered when the On-to-the-Bay association drew to the attention of the Commission that 40 per cent. of the $53,000,000 which the project including terminal facilities has cost, was financed by the sale of Mid-Western lands collected in cash "and" to quote the brief, "as there is still over twenty millions unpaid on contracts, it is possible that a further substantial sum may be realized."

Live Interest Advisable

In view of the apparent anxiety on the part of some Eastern interests to hamper and perhaps decimate the Hudson Bay route it is important that the people of the west give close attention to the representations which have already been made upon and see to it that their interest in the project is not lost sight of.

"Aspirin" Trade Mark Protected

Brings Actions To Restrain Infringement And Secure Judgment

The Bayer Company Limited having brought actions to restrain infringement of its registered trade mark "Aspirin" the Exchequer Court of Canada has given judgment against its five defendants. In each case the Exchequer Court perpetually restrains the defendants Ivan Lambert, Joseph Novack, Standard Bottlers and Packers Ltd., E. Neuman and Joe Beckman from using the trade mark "Aspirin" on preparations put out by themselves and awards the Bayer Company costs and damages.

The defendants were marketing the infringing product under various names, including Pioneer Sales Co., Western Sales Co., Western Distributing Co., Advance Specialty Co., and Acme Specialty Company. The tablets labelled "Aspirin" were not of Bayer manufacture and were packed in small envelopes, each containing three or four tablets, and mounted on cards.

It is the intention of The Bayer Company, Limited, to take every legal method to uphold its trade mark.

"Aspirin" is the trade mark of The Bayer Company, Limited, Windsor, Ontario.

Should Advertise Wheat

Dr. Hind Advocates Fewer Acres And Larger Yields To Lower Production Cost

Canada should send experts to visit wheat countries, particularly Russia, "to keep up posted," Dr. E. Cora Hind of Winnipeg, told the Women's Canadian Club at Toronto.

"Russia is, and may be, increasingly a menace to Canada in the wheat market of the world," she said, adding the world could do without Canadian wheat unless the price is right.

Dr. Hind, speaking after a two-year globe-trotting trip in which she visited 27 countries, declared Canadian wheat should be produced on fewer acres with larger yields per acre and at lower costs. It should be sold at the world price.

Canada, she said, should have more and better advertising in other countries.

Air Squadron For Calgary

Formation Of A Non-Permanent Force Is Underway

Formation of a non-permanent squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Calgary, which will be recruited in the city, is underway. It was learned from officials of military district No. 13.

It was indicated establishment of the non-permanent unit would be the first step to the stationing at Calgary of a permanent militia flying force, possibly within a year.

The number of men recruited for the non-permanent squadron, aviation authorities said, would depend on the type formed in Calgary. There are three types—army co-operation, fighting or pursuit and bombing squadrons, each with varied personnel. At full strength a non-permanent squadron may have 16 officers and 140 other ranks.

Training of a non-permanent flying section would be confined largely to ground instruction in technical and theoretical training. Allocation of vacancies in schools of practical training at R.C.A.F. bases to personnel of the non-permanent unit would be likely if it was reported, until aeroplanes were brought here for permanent use.

Squadron Leader F. C. Higgins, from the R.C.A.F. base at Ottawa, will open an office in Calgary shortly to direct militia activities in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

WATCH TEMPERATURES

IN DEEP-FAT FRYING

Doughnuts belong to the colder winter months. They are frowned upon by many people because they are considered too greasy. They certainly are not an ideal food for children and invalids but an active person can digest doughnuts if they have been properly made and are eaten in moderation.

The temperature of the fat is most important. If the fat is too cold the doughnuts become soaked with fat. If the fat becomes too hot, it degrades. It should not be smoking hot.

Test the temperature with a little of the doughnut mixture or a little bread. A small cube of bread should turn a golden brown in 60 seconds, if raw foods are to be cooked.

The kettle for deep-fat frying should be deep enough to hold a heavy material. An iron one is best. It takes a long time to heat up but once the pan and fat are heated through, they remain at a uniform temperature.

If the fat has been used several times, it is wise to clarify it. Add a few slices of raw potatoes and heat gradually. The potato will absorb some of the impurities. Strain the fat through a cloth over a strainer. This removes all the solid particles and pieces of food.

Lard is used as good fat for deep-fat frying. Some of the lard substitutes made of vegetable oils are even more satisfactory but a combination is advised. Fat rendered from poultry is excellent.

While you have a quantity of fat on hand for deep-fat frying, why not try some fritters? They are a variation of doughnuts and are cooked in the same manner. Diced up fruit may be added to the fritter batter.

APPLE FRITTERS

1 cup flour
1/2 lb. apples baking powder
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 milk
1 egg

Mix and sift the dry ingredients, beat the egg and add milk. Stir the wet ingredients into the dry ones. Add the apple which has been cut into small pieces. Drop by spoonful into the hot fat and fry like doughnuts.

Noted War-Time Aviator

Captain Morley Carter Killed In Automobile Accident In Ontario

Captain Morley Carter, 49-year-old noted war-time flyer, killed in an automobile accident near Barrie, Ont., was buried in Orillia, with military honours.

Capt. Carter enlisted in 1915 in the Royal Air Force. After training for several months he was sent to France for active flying and received decorations several times for distinguished service. He was one of the first sent to Italy to aid the Italians against the Germans and of the four was the only one to reach the scene.

After the war, Capt. Carter was with the Ontario air force patrolling the north and making government surveys. He was also connected with the Dominion and Saskatchewan air forces. A year ago he came east from Saskatchewan and has been with the Ontario air force since.

FLIN FLON

"The Story of Its Finding and Position To-day"

By PRATT KUHN

To Creighton and his prospecting friends also, goes the credit for the discovery, early in January, 1915, which culminated after many vexatious delays, in Manitoba's first commercial mining enterprise, when the Flin Flon mine, under the management of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., came into production in November, 1930, as Canada's third largest metallurgical enterprise.

If prospecting had not been profitable, trapping horses and while camped at the outlet of Phantom Lake, near the present site of Flin Flon, Tom Creighton, early in January, 1915, was looking for meat for his party. He saw some young willows and goose feed so started trailing along looking for moose sign. He worked his way uphill over a hump and as he got to the top he discovered a lake in the distance he had not known was there.

Curiosity led him to investigate and the edge of the lake he discovered a spot uncovered of snow which showed chalcopryite in the schist.

He marked the spot which he could not thoroughly examine at the time and early in the spring of 1915 he returned and found pieces of ore projecting through the ice at the shore, which brought the firm resolve to investigate it in a characteristic, thorough manner, when the spring break-up occurred.

During the winter of 1915, Dan Mosher, unknown to his colleagues, came to Toronto and approached Jack Hammill for a grubstake, forming the Mosher-Hammill Syndicate for further prospecting in the area.

Hammill, a native of Beeton, Ontario, had found express on for his dynamic personality in many mining camps where he became a colorful figure, ever ready to assume responsibility and carry to conclusion those jobs which offered seemingly impossible obstacles. His loquacious, genial personality won for him an enviable reputation among the mining fraternity. Financial associates of Hammill in the syndicate were Alex. Fasken, Toronto solicitor, financier and mining executive, Frank Currie, hotel keeper, and Hugh Ryan, by Tom Creighton, Dan Mosher, John Mosher, Leon Dion, Isadore Dion and Dan Milligan.

When Dan Mosher came back to Beaver Lake from Toronto, bringing supplies for a season's prospecting by the party, and an argument with the Mosher-Hammill Syndicate, the plans of Creighton and his friends to finance the own grubstake had to be considered. Dan Mosher, in good faith, had gone so far with his plans that he had no alternative but to let the others join the syndicate.

After the spring break-up, Creighton and John Mosher went to look over Creighton's discovery of the winter before. Convinced that it was a large ore body, containing copper, zinc, gold and silver, they started claims, the extent of their licenses, and hurried back to the evasive base at Beaver Lake to get the rest of their party and their horses, in order that more claims might be staked.

They Found A Hole A Well As A Mine—And How Well This Worked Out!

As if a sympathetic giant had consoled to aid them, a memo for the discovery was already at hand. Months before the party had picked up the remains of a paper backed novel on a porch on the Churchill River, where some pioneer had left behind his lead. "The Sunless City" was the title of this Finnish dime novel and the leading character was Joseph Flintabully Flon'tin. Esq., conspired by the prospector to "Flin Flon". It told of a subterranean domain where gold was so plentiful that it was literally a base metal—truly the mecca sought by all prospectors. The coincidence of stumbling upon such a fanciful tale by the prospectors seems almost incredible, more so because the concluding pages of the novel had been torn off and its finder was not to know the hole through which Flin Flon reached the earth's surface, but by a strange coincidence there was a conical shaped hole ten ft. in diameter and several feet deep adjacent to where the number one Flin Flon shaft was sunk. At the bottom of this hole Creighton got some rich pumpkins, due to the concentration from the surrounding leached ore, and he laughingly remarked that "old Flin Flon must have shken his gold-dust laden willows when he emerged from 'The Sunless City.' I'll tell you more of this work later, but here was a perfect name for the discovery—"Flin Flon".

I Discovered Tom Creighton In A Shower Bath!

I have gone over all of these facts with Tom Creighton himself, and he verified them as correct, after changing some details.

Funny thing, too, how I met Tom by pure accident. I was having a shower early in the morning and had just moved out for a rub-down when another chap stepped under the shower. When he came out I was telling him what a marvelous place the Flin Flon had grown into and remarked, "I've been down in the mine and all through the upper works, shafts, etc., but I do wish I could find Tom Creighton. Down in Toronto they told me he lived in Winnipeg, but I looked there and couldn't find him. Up here they say he hasn't been around since 1930. What a kick he'd get out of this development."

Now get the picture. Here were two perfect strangers enjoying a shower and a rub, with the newspaper man doing all the talking. Did he get a surprise when the other man said, "Tom Creighton,"—and he was!

Next day he was away in his car again, but I met him at Lacey's—but my three-hour conversation with Tom that night is another story. He was very friendly and orderly development of the Flin Flon after its finding and naming.

This story started last week. Next issue real action starts. The "experts" can't believe such a prospect exists.

In 1916 Flin Flon Camp looked like this.

A Valuable Shipment

Pricelless Manuscripts Brought From England For Book Fair

Pricelless manuscripts formed a unique shipment, made recently by the C.P.R. The manuscripts were brought over from England via the "Empress of Britain". The parcel included the late Sir James Barrie's last work, entitled "The Boy David," an edition of John Drinkwater's manuscripts, "Robinson of England," and C. S. Forester's "The Happy Return." These were displayed at the book fairs held in Toronto and Montreal.

Can Be Traced Back

Many Words Commonly Used In Scotland Had French Origin

It is particularly in Scotland, formerly bound so intimately to France—as during the Stuart times—that one can trace back a considerable number of French words that have passed into the popular speech. . . . Thus the Scotch "fash" comes from "facher," the word "tumble" from "tumbler," "tassie" from "tasse," the farm girl who calls her cows cries "Proochie" (approach). So many Scotch words are connected with French terms, beginning with the national Scotch dish, which is called haggis, and is really "huchis"—Le Devoir, Montreal.

WHAT HO!

"A sure, quick cure for hives—no, that's not it." He was about to consign this letter to the flames when he reconsidered. "Better keep it," he remarked. "One never knows when one might have hives."

He rifled through the remaining missives, crumpling the bulk of them and pitching them into a fire-place so wide and high that a hippopotamus could have been barbecued there.

"Funny," he said, "Always losing letters. I put this one in a safe place and now I can't find the safe place. But no matter. I remember most of it."

"Tell us."

"It seems," said the Earl, "that a certain millionaire would like to take the castle."

"Take it?"

"I mean to say rent it. He wants it for one month only."

"Odd idea," remarked Lady Rosa Bingley.

"Odd fish, from what I gather," said her father. "But dripping with currency. Made it himself, I believe, though just how MacKintosh did it, I don't know."

"What's his name?"

The Earl furrowed his brow.

"Atkinson? No. Ely? No. Dixon? Friggs—no, that's our batchelor friend. It could be Gatsen. It isn't though. Whitten? Can that be it? Or is it Catermole?"

"Never mind, father."

"I won't," said the Earl. "He'll know his own name. Bound to."

"American, of course," said Duff-Hooper.

"I daresay," replied the Earl.

"I was afraid of that," said Duff-Hooper.

"Why?"

"A poisonous lot, Americans."

"Oh, come now," said the Earl, mildly. "I shouldn't wonder if there are heaps of nice Americans."

"It would surprise me to find one," returned the captain.

"Know many?" asked Lady Rosa.

"Enough," answered Duff-Hooper. "All impossible. Richer they are the more impossible they are, and I judge that this one must be a primo specimen. I hate to think of Bingley crawling with the creatures. I'd rather it were beetles."

"If you know a beetle with a thousand pounds, wire me at once," said the Earl. "I don't, myself, relish the idea of letting Americans, or Britishers, for that matter, camp here, but it is our one way to raise the wind."

"But, father," said Rosa, "will he pay a thousand pounds for just one month? That's a pretty stiff sum."

"You're telling me," said the Earl. He saw Duff-Hooper look pained.

"I heard a chap say that in the cinema," explained the Earl. "It was a picture about a rather disolute character who did not care for castles and went about lapping them on a sword-stick, like so many butterflies, you know. Another shady individual told him that the heat was on and he had better scram and he replied—"

"Tell us more about the millionaire," said Rosa.

"Delighted to," said the Earl. "MacKintosh says he is extraordinarily keen on castles. Quite catfodt, in fact. He told Mac that he'd made up his mind when only a nipper that some day he'd have a castle of his own, and I infer that he's the sort of citizen who gets what he wants. He even spoke of buying Bingley, if he liked it. Fancy!"

"But you wouldn't sell?" said Rosa, quickly.

"Chop my nose off with a dull hoe before I'd do that," replied the Earl. "When does our millionaire arrive?"

"Any moment now," said the Earl. "He's on his way down from London."

"Suppose he doesn't take the castle?" said Duff-Hooper.

"Must you be a killjoy, Esme?" demanded the Earl. "Of course, he'll take it. At least," he added, "I pray he will."

"If he does not?" persisted Duff-Hooper.

"In that lamentable event," said the Earl, "I shall set up in business as a batchelor."

"I intend to be very nice to him," said Rosa. "As for you, Esme, no dirty looks."

"What?"

"Rosa means," said the Earl, "no growling or glaring. Can he help it if you don't take on Americans? After all he is going to give us a much needed leg-up. It will never do to treat him as if he'd come here to pinch the Bingley rubies."

"What rubies?" asked Lady Rosa.

"Just a figure of speech, my dear," replied the Earl. "If we ever did have any they'd have gone up the spot long since. I can promise you. And now you might put that practical mind of yours to work on the problem of packing for a month's stay with sister Julia on the Isle of Man. Heaven help us all."

"Will he want to move in immediately?"

"Such, I take it, is his intention," said the Earl. He sighed.

"I'd rather spend a month with a dentist than with Julia. Why she must serve sheep-dip for port, I can't think. And her 'Togit'! But we can't effort to put up at an hotel, so it's hot for the Isle of Man—if the Earl is still running? Is it?"

"Yes. Just fixed."

"Splendid. Well toodle on down to Jolly Julia's tomorrow and leave our moneyed friend to wallow in the historic charms of old Bingley. And do remind me to show him where the bath-room is. If he couldn't find it during his month, he might be liked."

There was a tap on the library door.

"Crump," said the Earl of Bingley. "Only he has so discreet a knock."

He called out.

"Come in, Crump."

The butler entered. He was a slow and comfortable man. The years had subtracted from his hair and added to his girth. Had he been dressed in a bathing suit, toga, kimono, serapi, or derv's outfit, he would still have looked like a butler. At the moment excitement rendered him a thought breathless.

"Beg pardon, m'lud," he said, "but there's a person behaving most queerly in the grounds."

"Is there really?" said the Earl, calmly. "Tell him not to, Crump."

"What is he doing?" asked Lady Rosa.

"Hugging a horse, your ladyship," replied Crump.

"He should not do that here," said the Earl. "Tell him I'm an amateur-lover myself, but there is a place for everything."

"Who is he, Crump?" Lady Rosa asked.

"Not knowing, can't say," said Crump.

"One of Esme's horsey pals, perhaps," suggested the Earl.

"Oh, no, m'lud," said Crump. "I am positive that no friend of Captain Duff-Hooper would have a horse like that. Why, he appears to be intoxicated and he is trying to waltz."

"Dear, dear," said the Earl, "that won't do at all, you know. Show him away, Crump, show him away at once. We are expecting an important visitor. Our millionaire's first view of Bingley should not include a squilly stranger waltzing with a horse."

MOTHER OF FIVE WHO WAS ALWAYS TIRED

Now Awakes As Fresh As A Daisy

A mother of five has a lot to do. Especially a country mother. And this one was "always tired". But Kruschen ended all that—now she gets up, feeling fresh, at five o'clock in the morning! She writes:

"I find Kruschen Salts the best thing money can buy for my health. I am the mother of five children, and before taking Kruschen, I was always feeling tired and run down. Now, I am glad to say that I get up feeling fresh—and I get up at five o'clock in the morning. I do my housework, look after my children and leave the house at 6:30 to start my daily work."—(Mrs.) B.

Tiredness and that run-down feeling can be traced to one root cause. That cause is internal sluggishness; failure to keep the body free from poisonous waste matter.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

"Beg pardon, m'lud," corrected Crump, "but it is the best which is intoxicating and trying to waltz."

"I wish he wouldn't," said the Earl. He stroled to the window and looked out.

"I wish I had a horse that could do tricks," he remarked wistfully. "If I hadn't been born an earl, I'd have gone with a circus. And I may do so yet. Crump?"

"Yes, m'lud?"

"Just give the fellow a shilling, thank him for his performance, tell him to toddle along elsewhere."

"Yes, m'lud."

Crump filtered out of the library.

"I think, my dear Rosa," said the Earl, "that when our millionaire arrives you had better show him about the place. Would you mind?"

"I fully intend to," said Lady Rosa. "You'd take a week to it, the way you bumble on."

"I do rather humble, don't I?" said the Earl.

He marched to the fire-place.

"Must practice earling a bit," he remarked.

He stood with his back to the fire, his feet spread wide apart, his arms behind his back, and he contorted his usually vacuous features into an expression approaching haughty dignity.

"Isn't that how earls do it on the cinema?" he asked.

"Every inch an earl," laughed Rosa, and kissed him.

Crump entered his presence into the room.

"The person who was embracing the horse which was intoxicated and trying to waltz is at the door," he declared. "He states that he wishes to see the castle."

"Did he jingle, Crump?" asked the Earl.

"I heard no sound, m'lud."

"Is he an American?"

"Indubitably."

"Our millionaire?" cried the Earl. "Pour him in, Crump."

"At once, m'lud," said Crump. "But may I say that you are mistaken in supposing him to be a millionaire. He hasn't the look of one at all. He is young, and his clothes—well, m'lud, you saw his clothes!"

"So I did," said the Earl. "But what do clothes signify? Look at mine. Millionaires do not wear gold suits with diamond buttons, you know."

"I am aware of that, m'lud," said Crump, loftily.

"Besides," said the Earl, "Americans have their own ideas, you know. Some of them dress as if their tailors were upholsterers. Trot him in, Crump."

"Excuse me, m'lud," said Crump, with a show of emotion, "but may I remind you of the object on which he arrived. Surely you recall his horse."

"Perfectly," said the Earl, glancing through the window. "He is even now munching my rose-gardenias. Ask him not to will you, Crump?"

"Yes, m'lud."

But Crump did not go.

"If," he said, "he is selling something and you buy it, m'lud, I hope you will not hold me responsible."

"I won't," answered the Earl of Bingley. "So you need not stand there looking like a beached porpoise. Roll him in."

Tartan Started Romance

Couple Met At Exhibition In Dispute Over Name

A romance that developed from an argument over the name of a clan tartan at the Housing and Health Exhibition in Kelvin Hall, Glasgow, has just come to light.

When visiting the exhibition last year a man had a wordy dispute with an attendant at one of the stands regarding the name of a certain clan tartan.

A young woman, overhearing the argument, asked to be allowed to intervene, and she settled the dispute by pointing out that the attendant was right, and the visitor wrong.

The sequel to this chance meeting came a short time ago. A couple called at the same stand, and, recognizing the attendant who knew his tartans, they asked if he remembered the argument of a year ago.

He did, whereupon the couple laughingly told him that they were the other persons involved, and that they had been married a fortnight ago.

The young couple are now to go out to South Africa, where the bridegroom has received an appointment.

Would Be Great Saving

Paper Maché Milk Bottle Invented By London Man

A rejectable milk bottle that he hopes will save dairies thousands of dollars a year has been invented by A. W. T. Inglis, London, Ont., insurance agent and a resident of Windsor until last summer. A patent has been applied for but has not been granted. The bottle is made of paper maché or compressed pulp, lined with cellophane, and can be turned out by the thousands at less than half a cent each, Mr. Inglis said.

Two features that make it different from other disposable milk bottles in use are windows in the paper maché outer crust, through which the housewife can see how much milk is in the bottle and how much cream is on the milk, and a special construction which will permit use of ordinary milk bottle fillers and cappers. The invention is shaped exactly like the present milk bottle.

Honor Boys All Returned School For Holiday

John F. Gettman, superintendent of the State Industrial School for Boys at Kearney, Neb., disclosed all six of the youths he released "on their honor" to go home for Thanksgiving (Nov. 25) returning to the institution at the specified time. "We picked three of our best boys and three of our worst," Gettman said. "All six returned right on the dot when their holiday at home was over."

Of the female workers in the factories of Japan, it is estimated that more than a fifth are girls who are under the age of 16 years.

She: "What's the difference between dancing and marching?"

He: "I dunno."

She: "I thought so."

Some Amazing Figures

Statistics About Telephone Show How Habit Has Grown

Statistics are dry enough, but there are some amazing figures about the telephone in the National Geographic Magazine.

New York has more telephones than all France with its 42,600,000 people, Chicago has more than all South America, and Los Angeles more than all Africa.

There are 800 people telephoning from the Atlantic to the Pacific every day, connected up at New York. One can pick up a telephone transmitter and get connection with anyone of 32,500,000. And that number is 93 per cent. of all the telephones of the world. There are seventy countries interlinked by wire or radio with the telephone system of Canada. Only Soviet Russia and New Zealand, also Greenland, are as yet unconnected with the world telephone network.

The United States records 85,000,000 phone conversations a day. The statistics do not give the number of listeners in the rural party lines. Shades of Alexander Graham Bell—St. Catharines Standard.

Early Pioneer

Picturesque Figure Of Saskatchewan's South Country Is Dead

Trefle Bomeau, who came to Regina in 1882 and who has been a picturesque figure of Saskatchewan's south country for decades, died at his ranch home at Willowbunch, Sask. He was in his 74th year.

Bomeau was in Regina during the rebellion of 1885 and was with his father when the body of Louis Riel, rebel leader, was delivered to the latter. In 1887 he went to Willowbunch.

When Bomeau first went into the south country, the remnants of Sitting Bull's Sioux warriors were camped near his ranch. Bomeau became a lifetime friend of Jean Louis Legare, trader and confidant of Sitting Bull, who eventually negotiated the surrender of the Sioux war chief to the American authorities.

Samples Are Rich

More Gold Has Been Found In Northern Areas

Valuable gold discoveries have been made in the Contact Lake area in northern Saskatchewan. Contact Lake is located between Stanley and Lac la Ronge, about 200 miles north of Prince Albert. It is reported that prospectors in this district have traced a vein eight feet wide for more than 200 feet and have found out-cropping for an additional 600 feet. Samples of the ore assayed as high as $635 a ton.

Could Not Escape

The Sunday school lesson was about the wolf and the lamb. When the teacher had finished, she said:

"So you see, my dears, if the lamb had been really good he would not have been eaten by the wolf."

"But," said one little girl, "he'd have been eaten by us, wouldn't he?"

Little Helps For This Week

O that Thou wouldst bless me indeed, and that Thy hand might keep me from evil, that it may not grieve me! 1 Chron. 4:10.

What I possess, or what I crave, I bring to thee, O God, my Father, and I leave it to Thee.

What I enjoy, O make it blessed. In making me, thou hast made me, O God, my Father, and I leave it to Thee.

Offer up to God all pure affections, desires and regrets, and all the bonds which link us to home, kindred and friends, together with all our works, purposes and labors. These things which are sacred will become then the matter of thanksgiving and prayer. Plans for the future, all wishes and intentions, works just begun, half done, all but completed, sympathies and affections, all these things through the heart and will. The only way to master them is to offer them up to him as, once ours, always His by rights.

Education Of Quints

Will Be Trained To Disregard Public Attention They Receive

Callander's famous Dionne quintuplets will be trained to withstand the public stare like a royal family, says Dr. A. T. Dufour, physician to the world's most noted children.

The quint, Dr. Dufour said, will be educated to understand they are unique and to grow normally notwithstanding, just as children of royal families are trained to disregard the great public attention they attract.

The doctor said the quint, were "worth" about $500,000 now and added: "The only privacy they will ever get will be what they buy."

Curling Notes

Curling got back on its regular schedule again after a cold snap. Although the ice was tricky some good games were played last week.

On Wednesday afternoon, Dec 8th, F. Morrell took the cup away from the Abbot rink skipped again by E. Robinson closing rally resulted in a 8-7 win.

There were no games played the evening due to the intense cold.

The following evening J. Peyton defeated Lon Cooley 9-6 and C. W. Rideout won from J. Gingles.

On Friday night with warmer weather prevailing F. Morrell successfully defended the cup losing out W. Gallagher 6-5 in the best game so far this season.

Saturday evening saw J. Peyton's rink drop a 12-7 decision to W. Gallagher and G. Pitken trounce W. S. Lee 14-3.

Monday Dec 13th was an unlucky day for Len Cooley and C. W. Rideout, the former lost to F. Morrell 9-7 and the latter took a 12-4 tinning from W. Todd. This was W. Todd's rink first win of the season.

The next night N. Nystrom to W. Gallagher, 11-9.
